Corrigendum

Corrigendum to “The Biber Cognitive Estimation Test”
[Archives of Clinical Neuropsychology

Sarah E. Bullard², Deborah Fein²*, Mary Kay Gleeson², Nita Tischer³,
Robert L. Mapou³,¹, Edith Kaplan⁴,²

¹ Department of Psychology, University of Connecticut, 406 Babbidge Rd., U-20, Storrs, CT 06269-1020, USA
² New England Psychological Consultants, 45 Merrimack St., Suite 502, Lowell, MA 01852, USA
³ William Stixrud, Ph.D. & Associates, LLC 3720 Georgia Avenue, Suite 300, Silver Spring, MD 20910, USA
⁴ Suffolk University and Boston University School of Medicine, 41 Temple St., Boston, MA 02114-4280, USA

The authors regret an omission in the above-mentioned paper. Answers on the Biber Cognitive Estimation Test (BCET) that fall between the 5th and 95th percentiles receive a score of 1, while scores that fall outside of this range receive a score of 0. The maximum total score possible is 20.